Executive Summary

This report reviews the sales data of a Kenyan retail shop to show what customers buy,how they pay and which products earn the most revenue.Over the period reviewed,the shop earned a total of KSh 11.27 million from 120,000 sales,with each sale averaging KSh 93.88.Customers paid mostly by card.Credit cards generated the largest share of sales at 30.24%,followed by debit cards at 25.11% and cash at 19.74%.M-Pesa accounted for 15.11% of sales,equal to KSh 1.70 million,which shows there is room to grow mobile payments.Among the products,Grocery was the best-performing category earning over KSh 550,000 followed by Meat and Fruits.Laundry earned the least at just under KSh 300,000.

Sales rose and fell during the period.They reached their highest point around September and then declined in October and November which suggests the shop may need to review its pricing,stock and promotions during these slower months.The customer model also shows that new customers are the most likely to stop buying from the shop. For this reason,the shop should focus on encouraging these customers to return for example through loyalty rewards, follow-up offers and good customer service.By keeping more of its new customers and turning them into regular buyers,the shop can protect its income and support steady sales growth in the future.

KEY INSIGHTS AND

1.Key Findings

Payment Methods: Credit cards brought in the most revenue at KSh 3.41 million (30.24%).Debit cards came second at KSh 2.83 million (25.11%) followed by cash at 19.74%.M-Pesa earned KSh 1.70 million (15.11%).Gift cards and online payments made up about 5% each.
Top Categories: Grocery earned the most revenue at KSh 573,000,followed closely by Meat (KSh 552,000) and Fruits (KSh 510,000). Pens,Kitchenware and Menswear earned the least.
Customer Spending: The shop made 120,000 sales and earned KSh 11.27 million between January 2023 and July 2026.The average value of each sale was KSh 93.88 and it was almost the same for every payment method.
Sales Trend: Monthly sales were steady at about KSh 370,000 from 2024 to mid-2025. From August 2025,they fell to about KSh 180,000 per month and have stayed at that level since.
Customer Retention: Out of 75,799 customers,58% have bought only once.This shows that many first-time customers do not return.

2.Recommendations

Card-Focused Marketing: Credit and debit cards together bring in over 55% of revenue.The shop should work with banks to offer card-linked cashback or loyalty points rather than relying only on mobile money.
Stock Management: The manager should give priority to Grocery,Meat and Fruits as these categories earn the most revenue.Keeping them fully stocked will help prevent customers from going elsewhere.
Review the Drop in Sales: Monthly sales fell by about half from August 2025.The shop should find out what changed at that time such as store operations,stock,pricing or promotions and act on it.
Win Back First-Time Customers: Because 58% of customers have bought only once,the shop should offer a small discount or loyalty reward on a second visit.Follow-up SMS offers can also encourage these customers to return.
Increase Spending per Sale: An average sale of KSh 93.88 is low.The shop can raise it with “buy more,save more” deals and by placing small items such as Snacks and Bakery products near the checkout.
Improve Weak Categories: Pens,Kitchenware and Menswear earn the least.The shop should bundle these items with popular Grocery products or review their pricing and display.
